This hike involves a strenuous 6 mile round trip hike ascending more than 1000 feet to a sandstone alcove lined with ancient petroglyphs. Along the trail you will enjoy many beautiful rock formations and spectacular views of the Vermilion Cliffs, Kaibab Plateau and all of Kanab. You will be hiking steep uneven terrain and some scrambling is required to negotiate a seven-foot sandstone ledge and then a sandy hill to the top. The Mansard site faces southwest and is very unique. The deeply grooved slabs have never been found at any other site. This site is thought to date to the Anasazi period (2 AD to about 1350 AD). It is uncommon to see rock art on the floor of a rock shelter. Please don’t touch or walk on the writings, respect and protect this special site.

GETTING THERE:
• Drive 6.5 miles east of Kanab just past milepost 59 and turn left on onto Vista Drive Road.
• Turn right on Grande Vermilion Avenue.
• Turn left on Coyote Canyon.
• Turn off on Rocky Ridge Trail.
• Go through the gate one road #105.
• Stay right after the Y in the road on #105M. The left goes to the water tank.
• When the road ends park here. The trail will begin here.
• Be prepared for hiking in hot weather. Be sure to bring plenty of water.
